

ABOUT

Coro Southern California is a nonpartisan nonprofit organization focused on cultivating diverse leaders through hands-on, collaborative, cross-sectoral learning. For over 60 years, Coro Southern California has equipped those leading our region with the resources they need to understand how decisions are made, complex policies are shaped and how to influence meaningful change.

The Coro Women in Leadership (WIL) Program supports the leadership development of women across the Southern California region, establishing a pipeline for professional advancement, and creating a cross-sector network of women who support each other's leadership development. WIL brings together a cohort of mid-career women of diverse backgrounds from the private, nonprofit, and government sectors for intensive leadership development seminars and post-fellowship networking.

Cohorts run twice a year for five, two-day sessions.
See corola.org/wil for upcoming sessions.

PROGRAM ELEMENTS

THE SKILLS

Training & Peer Consulting: Over the course of the program, participants develop close ties through intensive training and peer consulting, exploring leadership through group process using the cohort as a case study.

Analytical & Leadership Exercises: WIL presents participants with a series of challenges, both in the Los Angeles public sector and in their place of business, to explore all aspects of an issue and navigate varying stakeholder interests to enhance leadership skills.

THE KNOWLEDGE

Expert Interviews: Participants are exposed to a diverse range of our region's women leaders – from CEOs to Commissioners to community advocates – to understand what matters to them most at work, in their communities, and in leadership.

THE NETWORK

Intentional Networking: Weaved throughout WIL and beyond the training sessions are opportunities designed for meaningful and long-lasting network building. Coro is committed to strengthening the leadership fabric of Southern California and that involves program structures and exercises that deepen connections with intention.

PROGRAM OUTCOMES

WIL cohort members will...

- have the opportunity to examine their own beliefs, understand how they arrived at them, and be challenged to question or reaffirm those beliefs.
- skillfully, actively and innovatively analyze, evaluate and synthesize information to design informed solutions.
- navigate through multiple forms of communication, utilizing knowledge, trust, context, and purpose to influence change.
- creatively and thoughtfully build and bridge sustained partnerships to solve challenges.
- discern between effective management and impactful leadership, and examine the connection between the two.
- acquire the knowledge, intellectual skills and applied competencies to sustain reflective and effective leadership.

WHO SHOULD APPLY?

The Coro Women in Leadership Program is for women who:

- are committed to deepening their leadership capacity through Coro's proven methodology
- are looking to expand their professional and personal networks
- are rising or established decision makers, managers and/or influencers at their respective organizations
- have a minimum of 7 years of work experience

As a reflection of public life, Women in Leadership cohorts are a diverse group of women who come from the private, public, and nonprofit sectors.

Applicants should be prepared for an immersive, group-structured experience in personal reflection for leadership growth.

COST

Coro Southern California will facilitate two cohorts in Spring 2022: An in-person cohort for women who live and work in Los Angeles County, and a virtual program open to applicants from across the country. Both cohorts include 60+ hours of leadership development training, individual and small group coaching, and access to Coro alumni and cross-program events. Tuition for the virtual cohort is $3,000 and $3,500 for the in-person cohort, which also includes lunch and refreshments for each session. Payment in full (or agreement with Coro on a specific payment plan) is required before the start of the program. Partial, need-based scholarships are available.
